NATO Brussels Summit and Georgia's Expectations

By DR. VAKHTANG MAISAIA, IBSU, Black Sea Region Geopolitical Research Centre

On May 25-27 of 2017 a historic NATO Summit opened with conglomerating of new expectations and visions of the Alliance in volatile international order and current international relations conditions and with involvement of newly elected USA President Donald Trump with his extraordinary approaches toward actual problems of international security, including NATO's future missions and ob-ident Donald Trump delivered their respect speeches at the dedication of the 9/11 and Article 5 Memorial, it occurred first tiny differences. In his speech NATO Secretary General outnumbered and mentioned importance of invocation of Article 5 of the Washington 1949 Agreement and reminded to the NATO leaders importance of bond relations between Europe and North America in fostering international securities come under attack, we stand up for our values and our way of life. That is why a strong NATO is good for Europe, and good for North America", whilst Donald Trump did not pay attention to importance of Article 5 and concentrated effort in his pre-election rhetoric when he promoting agenda on further raising defense expenses and reaching on 2% GDP rate for every Alliance member-country.

ligations ahead. Donald Trump has had long journey before reaching Brussels and his ostensible trip in Middle East with conclusion of $110 billion arms deal with Saudi Arabia and successful negotiations with Israel leadership, remained many observers, community and public audience with vigorous optimistically senses on prolongation of the "successful case-study" in Brussels mostly having in consideration that NATO leadership moved into new modern style and more large HQ not far from the old one. At initial stage when two leaders NATO Secretary General Jen Stoltenberg and USA Prescurity provisions and promoting peaceful cooperation agenda (here is extraction of his speech: "NATO's greatest strength is the enduring bond between North America and Europe and for the first time, NATO invoked our collective defence clause, Article 5. One for all, and all for one. Hundreds of thousands of European and Canadian soldiers have served shoulder-to-shoulder with US troops in Afghanistan for over a decade. To help ensure it never again becomes a safe haven for international terrorists. It is our solidarity that keeps our nations safe. And when our open and free so-

In his speech he mainly indicated: "NATO member must finally contribute their fair share and meet their financial obligations. But 23 of the 28 member nations are still not paying what they should be paying and what they are supposed to be paying. This is not fair to the people and taxpayers of the United States. And many of these nations owe massive amounts of money from past years and not paying in those past years. Over the last eight years, the United States spent more in defense than all other NATO countries combined". He also echoed that if the other nations meet their fi-ancial commitment to NATO standards than the Alliance will be stronger and immune from recent threats and risks. This was first deliberate speech of the United States new leader to the Brussels Summit colleagues and his main message to NATO leadership. Unfortunately no further prolongation was put forward in cementing NATO-EU strategic partnership endorsed in Warsaw NATO Summit last year. As Donald Trump and Donald Tusk, European Council President, did not reach consensus on Russia's case and were not enthusiastic in further on strategic linkage. Despite of the matter, the key issue were discussing in the Summit agenda, notable as threat were concluded in:

- International terrorism and preventing and destroying ISIS anywhere and with this standpoint NATO will join the international anti-ISIS coalition in Middle East with its military coalition capabilities, mainly with Air Force ones;
- Illegal Migration
- Russia's aggressiveness toward NATO and its military confrontation lines toward the Alliance

As general observation, the Summit remains some uncertainties toward NATO enlargement policy that is very essential and substantial issues for Georgia and Ukraine in promoting their Euro-Atlantic integration policies and membership agendas for at least internal public consumption and reinforcing their national security environment. It was also unclear whether is being promoted so-called "Black Sea Security Initiative" launched in Warsaw Summit that is also very relevant to Georgia's current security provisions. Hence, the Summit has only recast many unwished feelings and remained to have quite nit so high expectations.

Balneological Resort Tskaltubo

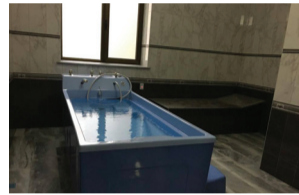

Tskaltubo is one of the indigenous balneology resorts throughout the world. The resort has become distinguished itself because of its unique mineral waters. The high efficiency of treatment & preventive water is due to the specific combination of the complex compositions and the main components of the contained salts. The natural temperature of waters (33-35°C) allows its utilization without preheating, no age limit.

Tskaltubo waters are used for treatment of the following diseases: locomotors system, cardiovascular, central and peripheral nervous neruval system, gynecological, skin, metabolism disorders, endocrine system and others.

The treatment is carried out in constantly running water in pools and rooms, by which water preserves physicochemical properties, uniformity and temperature. Currently, four bath buildings are operational at the resort. The buildings of springs N 6 and N 1 of "Balneoservice JSC" are directly built right on the springs. These two springs are fully adapted. Five pools are placed in the buildings which provide healing waters, including 50 individual spa water baths, 16 hydro massage rooms, spinal horizontal extension room etc.

The rehabilitation and re-equipping of the existing bathroom areas were carried out in line with European standards, while the medical-rehabilitation equipment were purchased in Czech Republic, Slovakia and Germany.

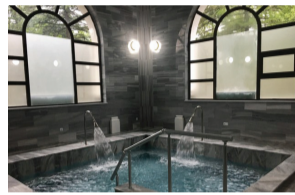

The following types of medical treatment procedures are available at the resort: baths of mineral water, underwater (hydro-massage), treatment exercise in the pool, classic medical massage, spinal horizontal extension in mineral water, physiotherapy, pressotherapy, gynecologic irrigation, shower "Shar-ko", circular shower, mechano-therapy in mineral water, peloido-therapy (mud application) and colon hydrotherapy.

Tskaltubo thermal-mineral waters are used to heal the diseases such as locomotors system, muscle dystrophy, rheumatoid arthritis, spondyloarthritis, cardiovascular diseases, nerval system diseases, polydiscopathia, discogenic radiculitis, post stroke recovery, traumatic brain injuries, neurosurgical post-operative care, gynecological diseases- including infertility, skin and urologic disorders.

Springs #1 and #6 also provides services for kids who suffer: juvenile rheumatoid arthritis, hemophilia, rehabilitation of children with cerebral palsy, autism and so on.

Tskaltubo's the first bathroom buildings date back to the 70th of 19 century. The age, unique waters and debit of the resort and the most importantly the affordable prices on the treatment procedures (comparing the same-profile resorts of West and West Europe) make Tskaltubo water unmatched. That is why 80% of visitors are foreigners at the resort. Tskaltubo is not a seasonal resort which is operational during the entire year and hosts guests even within the official holidays.

Nino Surguladze: We Have Reunited with Love for Love

It has been seven years since the charity foundation 'Dream Tree', founded by the famous Georgian mezzo soprano Nino Surguladze, first began to unite numerous individuals, including world stars, to help children with serious illnesses needing treatment by way of an annual concert-marathon. On May 1, at the State Opera House of Georgia, the charity foundation Dream Tree and the company Socar, together with the Georgian TV Broadcaster, held the 7th such concert.

Distinguished guests of the foundation were: conductor, composer and pianist Ezio Bosso, soprano Carmen Giannattasio and pianist Oliver Poole. The orchestra of the Opera House participated in the concert, conducted by maestro Bosso. In 2016, Bosso, one of the biggest musicians in the contemporary world, was recognized in Italy as the most active and successful musician at whose concert over 100 thousand tickets were sold. In London, the press and critics were unanimous in acknowledging one of his concerts as the greatest event of the year.

Six years ago, Maestro Bosso discovered he was suffering from an incurable and fatal disease- lateral Amyotrophic Sclerosis. In spite of this, Bosso did not stop and continued composing with even greater enthusiasm, creating and giving out a lot of positive energy and love. The Georgian audience also received this love from at the latest charity soiree. The musical pieces performed with untypical extraordinariness, sensation and emotion deserved great approval and ovation from the public. The maestro represented the world premier "Rain in her Black Eyes", which he remade for the Tbilisi concert specially and rewrote for the whole orchestra. Maestro Bosso represented the highest class of musical performance, breaking all stereotypes and declaring that there are no disabilities.

Carmen Giannattasio, named one of the most talented sopranos of her generation, stepped forward to serenade the Georgian audience in solo parts as well as in duo with Nino Surguladze.

"I believe that the audience was very happy to meet Maestro Bosso, as well as to listen the music and enjoy the environment." Nino Surguladze said. "More importantly, we will again help those who need our support. Our beneficiaries are in need of extra medical operations. We wish to bring our charity to the very end. Music is the universal language that unites everyone around love."

"I'm the happiest man in the world, as I'm in a country which I have learned about only from books," Bosso said. "I'm in an extremely wonderful theater, enjoying the opportunity to perform musical pieces with marvelous artists such as Nino Surguladze. I never thought that music could be helpful from this angle, but it has a power indeed, power to unite people around a kind activity."

Carmen Giannattasio: "We, singers, enjoy a gift – our voices, which we should share with others. First, we should please the audience and secondly, use it as a remedy for souls and hearts. We should take part in such charity events in order to help those who badly need it.

Let's share our love, heart and soul with these children."

Oliver Poole: "I've been Nino's friend for quite a while. I've also made friends with Georgia. It's a great honor for me to be participating in the charity marathon."

As a result of the past events, and thanks to the engagement and help of Georgian society as well as renowned stars, Dream Tree was able to save the lives of 50 children, most of whom had treatment financed overseas and had much-needed major operations. To date, over 200 thousand calls have been taken on the charity phone number. It is constantly ongoing and everyone from any cell operator can call and donate at: 09 01 900 999.

TURKISH PM MEETS GEORGIAN OFFICIALS IN TBILISI

Accompanied by seven ministers, Turkish Prime Minister Binali Yildirim paid one-day official visit to Georgia to attend the second meeting of the High Level Georgia-Turkey Strategic Cooperation Council.

At a meeting with Prime Minister Giorgi Kvirikashvili, the two leaders spoke on Turkish-Georgian economic and political relations. They also touched upon the trilateral Georgia-Azerbaijan-Turkey cooperation format and focused on the implementation of the Baku-Tbilisi-Kars railway project.

According to the Georgian PM's office, the two Prime Ministers discussed joint transport and energy projects during the Strategic Cooperation Council meeting. Speaking on the Baku-Tbilisi-Kars railway project, PM Kvirikashvili noted that "the corridor will be one of the important segments of the revival of the great Silk Road project."

At the Council meeting, the sides signed various documents to foster bilateral cooperation in the fields of economy, justice, cybersecurity and culture.

At the joint press briefing after the Council, PM Kvirikashvili noted that his counterpart's visit to Georgia, as well as the existence of the Strategic Cooperation Council, "is a clear evidence of the well-defined will of the two countries' political leaders and of the spirit with which the bilateral relations are developing."

Kvirikashvili said that despite intensive economic exchanges between Georgia and Turkey, "untapped potential" needs to be fully realized. For that, Kvirikashvili went on, the sides signed the declaration on the establishment of the Joint Economic and Trade Commission (JETCO), "which is yet another step ahead in this respect."

The Prime Minister also stressed the importance of "widening the free trade agreement as much as possible," enabling Georgian producers to increase export volumes to Turkey.

PM: HOLDING NATO PA SESSION IN TBILISI 'EXTREMELY IMPORTANT'

Georgian Prime Minister Giorgi Kvirikashvili said that holding the NATO Parliamentary Assembly Spring Session in Tbilisi "is extremely important."

"It is very important that such a high level meeting will be held in a non-NATO member state. A declaration supporting Georgia's Euro-Atlantic integration will be adopted and we believe that holding such events in Georgia is extremely important for reiterating support to Georgia's foreign political course," PM Kvirikashvili said at the government's session on May 25.

Parliament's Defense and Security Committee Chair Irakli Sesiashvili, who also leads the Georgian Parliament's delegation to the NATO Parliamentary Assembly, also commented on the issue.

"The NATO Parliamentary Assembly has held its sessions in non-member states only four times in its history and Georgia will be the first country since 2002 to host the session.
